FIATA ADDRESSING THE INDUSTRY

FIATA publishes dedicated COVID-19 page to support the freight forwarding community

To provide comprehensive support to members during the COVID-19 epidemic, FIATA has created a dedicated page on its website. This page will be regularly updated with the latest developments, FIATA position papers and press releases, and practical resources on the key topics impacting the freight forwarding industry. Crucially, it also provides useful tools for FIATA members to use within their national jurisdictions to ensure a coordinated and unified response.

We encourage our members to regularly consult FIATA's COVID-19 page at <https://fiata.com/covid-19/general-information.html>.

Maintaining the flow of essential goods during the COVID-19 crisis

In its recent guidelines, the European Commission (EC) calls for Member States to ensure that control measures do not 'undermine the continuity of economic activity and should preserve the operation of supply chains' to ensure the 'availability of goods, in particular essential goods such as goods and supplies including livestock, vital medical and protective equipment and supplies.

Maintaining the flow of essential goods during the COVID-19 crisis

FIATA – IATA, key partners in adversity – COVID-19 Medical and Economic Impacts

FIATA considers these moves to be critical to national responses to COVID-19. Freight forwarders, well-represented by FIATA's 40,000 members, ensure the supply of the world's cargo to communities and economies around the world, including food and basic necessities. Disruptions to this activity will affect the national supply and stocks of necessities such as food, medicine, hygiene products and other important goods in the fight against COVID-19.

FIATA – IATA, key partners in adversity – COVID-19 Medical and Economic Impacts

At this time all methods of the international movement of goods in trade have been impacted. However, airfreight is probably one of the key movers in international freight that has been most dramatically impacted by government's restrictions and overnight embargoes to the movement of people across borders, with daily flight cancellations and fleets near to be fully grounded.

On this matter FIATA noted and supports the International Air Transport Association (IATA) Media release where governments do not appear to clearly understand that short term decisions will exacerbate the immediate and short-term ability of economies to meet the challenge of Covid-19 containment and then the economic rebuild.

Across Land Borders Road and Rail – Vital Lifelines

Road transport is the single most deliverer of the last mile and is also the vital interface for air and sea freight domestic delivery. In other places road freight is the manufacturer, supplier and distribution delivery option to the point of destination and is vital for across border trade sustainability.

In this aspect, FIATA, who met at beginning of March with IRU Secretary General, supports the position of the International Road Union stating that:

FIATA invites shipping lines to adapt their practice on Demurrage and Detention

FIATA encourages shipping lines to review their demurrage and detention charges to ensure that they are reasonable under the COVID-19 circumstances. Such a review should consider the possibility of waiving charges based on the second purpose of acting as an incentive.

Instead, the focus should be on the more relevant purpose as compensation for the use of the container, noting that shipping lines themselves are trying to smooth the container flow through ports and importers are now unable in many places to arrange container delivery based upon government and regulator movement directions. It may also include consideration of how to provide greater flexibility in the payment of such charges, taking account of the difficulties faced by many of their partners.

Seafreight – The heavylift

The International Federation of Freight Forwarders Associations (FIATA) notes and supports the comments from the International Maritime Organisation (IMO) that:

“It is, therefore, crucially important that the flow of commerce by sea should not be unnecessarily disrupted. At the same time, the safety of life at sea and protection of the marine environment must also remain paramount.”

On these issue FIATA is mindful as to the need for a pragmatic approach to issues like crew changeovers, and their movements however if international airlines can have crew changeovers handled appropriately (noting that the technical and cabin crew numbers on an A380 long haul flight will be at or about the same level as a mid-size container vessel) then clearly a vessel’s crew

Trump will approve 90-day delay for some tariff payments

President Donald Trump will allow certain businesses to defer some tariff payments by three months, three sources told CNBC on Tuesday. The tariff deferral will come amid the coronavirus pandemic, which has upended global trade and ground the U.S. economy to a halt.

It was not immediately clear which payments would be included in the deferral. Sources said that the relief will likely be applied to "most favored nation" tariffs under the World Trade Organization.

Canadian freight forwarders association achieves customs breakthrough

The Canadian International Freight Forwarders Association (CIFFA) drafted a letter to Canada's Revenue Agency and to Canada's Border Services Agency, requesting consideration of an extension in the payment of duties and taxes to the Government of Canada this month and in the months moving forward. Flexibility in the area of payment of duties and taxes could very well be a lifeline for many Canadian businesses and is necessary now.

On March 22 importers and customs brokers who manage payment of duties and taxes to the Government of Canada received notice which indicates that there will be no relief from the obligation to remit in full duties and taxes on the due date of April 1st:

Covid-19 Situation in the United States from a FIATA Member

Much international passenger travel has been restricted including across land borders with Mexico and Canada (they are still open to commercial traffic). Freight forwarders and customs brokers have been deemed essential businesses so they remain open although many of their employees that do not physically handle freight are working remotely.

Freight is moving internationally but some ocean terminals are working reduced hours due to diminished freight flows. Airfreight underdeck capacity has been reduced internationally due to restrictions on passenger flight.

Chile's LATAM adds cargo flights to ease salmon supply chain difficulties

Chile's largest airline, LATAM Airlines Group, has sought to mitigate the difficulties caused by a travel ban imposed by the country's authorities to prevent the spread of COVID-19 by stepping up cargo flights even as passenger traffic falls.

LATAM has boosted capacity between European and South American destinations by 20%, adding as many as six weekly flights that will allow for trade in automotive spare parts, general cargo, medicines and perishable goods to continue. LATAM also raised its cargo schedules between North America and South America to 26 flights each week, an increase of nearly 15%.

Covid-19: EU Tax Authority tracker monitors cross-border VAT changes

Many tax authorities across Europe have updated their office hours and meeting procedures, penalty and interest timelines, and VAT reporting and payment schedules, according to detailed analysis of the current VAT rules introduced across the EU since the covid-19 crisis.

Although these changes should ease the immediate cashflow pressures on businesses, Lucy Franklin, CEO of Accordance, warned that 'those who trade in multiple territories need to understand that a prerequisite for many of these assistance measures, including VAT payment deferrals, is that companies continue to file their VAT returns on time.

The EU VAT tracker service details temporary changes to VAT compliance with updates on each member state's measures and information where available on any exemptions. U.K Govt softens COVID-19 blow on exporters

The commerce ministry on Tuesday extended the validity of the current foreign trade policy (FTP) for 2015-20 by another year to FY21 end. The move is aimed at softening the blow to exporters already grappling with a massive cancellation of orders in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, a senior official told FE.

The extension will enable exporters to continue to get incentives under existing programmes — including the Merchandise Exports From India Scheme (MEIS), interest equalisation scheme and transport subsidy scheme (for farm exports) — for one more year. However, a decision on extending the Services Exports Promotion Scheme is yet to be made, the ministry said.
